Egyptian monuments and ways of life have changed since the 19th Century. Mr. Fishman will first present a travelogue-style Nile tour solely using 1856-1870 wet collodion stereoview images on glass. These represent the highest artistic and technical photographic achievements of the time, and were considered wonders of their day. You will see familiar sights of Egypt before archaeology and tourism rendered them both too familiar and unrecognizable without their modern froth of crowds. We will then travel up the Nile 20 years later with Dr. Mutter to see how much tourism changed it and highlight several discoveries that are iconic events of the 19th Century (such as the discovery of the royal mummy cache in 1881).
